

Technical Workshop

Three-day lecture and workshop on data management and archive

Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, TUFS

Call for participants

Linguistic data obtained through fieldwork (audio, movie) are not available for use by the community and other researchers unless they are deposited in language archives with properly specified annotations and metadata. In this program, we will learn the correct way to collect data in the field and manage it for depositing into a language archive.

- fieldwork for long term archiving, building archivable data from the moment of capture (recordings, transcripts, interlinear gloss, corpus construction)
- file naming and metadata management
- creating a linguistic archive, an outline of how PARADISEC began and how it works now
- regular expressions for text conversion and for complex searches of corpora

1. Date/Time: 16-18 January, 2017, 10:30-12:00

*Advices on your own data by the lecturer are available at the venue during 13:30 and 16:30 each day.
