Asian and African Languages and Linguistics (AALL):

Guidelines for contributors of Linguistic Materials and Primary Data

Revised: October 2026

Asian and African Languages and Linguistics (AALL) invites submission of compilations of linguistic materials and primary data, as stipulated by the following rules.

1. Definition of 'Linguistic Materials and Primary Data': The contribution must include primary data that have been obtained by the author(s)' own fieldwork, and its main goal is to present the data as they are (rather than to present a particular analysis or theoretical discussion on the basis of the data). Examples include grammatical sketches, word lists, or the texts of folk tales.
2. Opportunities for submission are open to any researcher.
3. Submissions will be reviewed by two or more reviewers through a single-blind peer review process (where the identity of the author(s) is disclosed only to the reviewers). Submissions that do not fit the above definition of 'Linguistic Materials and Primary Data' will be rejected prior to review.
4. The manuscript submission and editorial review process are conducted entirely electronically. Authors wishing to submit a manuscript should request the article template from the Editorial Committee office (e-mail address and URL shown below), clearly stating their preferred file format (Microsoft Word or pLaTeX2ε) and language of writing (Japanese or English). The manuscript must be 40 or fewer pages in B5 size. At the time of submission, please send both the manuscript file (Word file or TeX source) and a PDF version. Please ensure that native proofreading in the language of writing has been completed for all manuscripts prior to submission.
5. AALL only accepts unpublished original manuscripts. The submission must not have been previously published in any other academic journal and must not be simultaneously under consideration by another journal.
6. In the spirit of open access, a CC (Creative Commons) license will be assigned to each AALL contribution (including both featured papers and linguistic materials). By submitting a manuscript, it will be assumed that the author(s) have agreed on the assignment of Attribution 4.0 International (CC BY 4.0). If other types/versions of CC licenses are preferred, please contact the Editorial Committee office at the time of submission. Alternative licenses may be permitted when there are reasonable grounds.
7. The manuscript submission deadline each year is June 30.
